Pacific Girl Program Logic

Strategies

Outcomes

End of program outcome

Adolescent girls are supported to advocate to government and other key stakeholders to meet their responsibility/duty to adolescent girls

Key stakeholders are supported to advocate collectively on priority issues identified by adolescent girls

Existing gender transformative programs for adolescent girls are supported to deliver, strengthen and connect their work with each other

Action research is undertaken with supported gender transformative programs for adolescent girls to promote continuous improvement and identify elements of good practice

Pacific girls and organisations implementing gender transformative programs for adolescent girls are given opportunities to strengthen practice by sharing learnings and exploring promising approaches

Key elements of effective gender transformative programming for adolescent girls in the Pacific are identified

Lessons are learned from programs and research outside Pacific Girl that have overlapping goals and integrated into effective practice

Diverse adolescent girls and their interests are more represented in subnational, national, regional CSO, and government dialogues

Gender transformative programs for adolescent girls in the Pacific are effectively implemented and strengthened by continuous improvement

Evidence is built and Evidence is built and
shared on effective gender transformative programming for adolescent girls in the Pacific and incorporated into practice in Pacific Women's work

Adolescent girls in the Pacific will have voice and agency and their rights will be increasingly respected and upheld